

Cal OES Daily Situation Report

October 26, 2018

As the hottest, driest and lowest national park, Death Valley is a land of extremes. Death Valley offers park visitors a striking contrast of landscapes to explore -- from the snow that frosts the park's towering peaks to the lush wildflower meadows and small oases that provide a reprieve from the heat to seemingly endless desert plains.

WEATHER OF CONCERN

Weather of Concern

- A Fire Weather Watch remains in effect for the eastern Sierra from Tahoe to Mono County. These areas are most prone to late season fire concerns due to the prolonged dry weather and lack of moisture in the higher elevations. Wind gusts could reach 40 mph, with higher gusts in wind prone areas and on ridges. While humidity will not be critically low on Sunday, the winds will produce greater impacts due to the very dry vegetation.

Key Points

10/26/18 - 11/01/18

Thursday - Sunday

- Elevated fire weather conditions across portions of southern CA due to sundowner and offshore winds.
- Critical fire weather conditions Sunday due to gusty winds and dry conditions in portions of eastern CA, including Mono and Alpine Counties, and the Greater Lake Tahoe area.
- Rain across northern coastal areas Friday through Sunday. Dry conditions across the rest of the state. No significant impacts due to precipitation.

Monday – Wednesday

- Rain across far northern coastal areas Monday. Dry conditions across the rest of the state. No significant impacts due to precipitation.
- Elevated fire weather conditions possible in the western Sacramento Valley Monday through Wednesday with dry conditions and increasing winds.
- Elevated fire weather conditions will continue to be possible across portions of southern CA due to sundowner and offshore winds.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

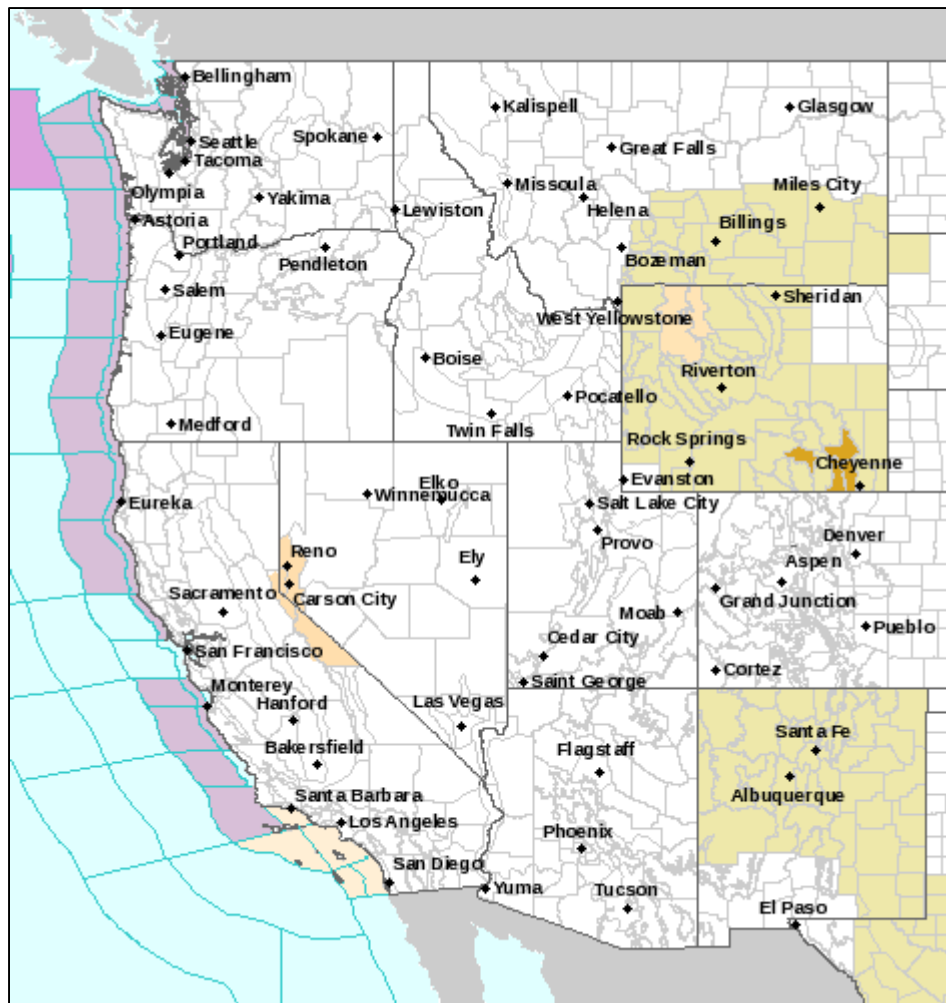

- High Risk Sunday Far Eastside for Gusty SW-W winds and Low Relative Humidity (RH)
- High Risk Mon-Thur for Strong N-NE/Offshore Winds and Low RH Western Cascade-Sierra Slopes-Coast
- High pressure will be over the Ops region through Saturday. Most areas will be dry with above normal temperatures, and light N-NE winds will return tonight. There is a slight chance of light rain in far NW CA tonight.
- A low pressure trough will move through the region Sunday and exit early Monday. Light rain possible north of a Ukiah-McCloud-Alturas line, with over half an inch in far NW CA. Partly cloudy to cloudy elsewhere.
- All areas will see cooler temperatures, higher RH, and gusty S-W winds Sunday. Areas along and E of the Cascade-Sierra crest will have gusts to 35 mph, and lingering low RH (15-20%) in the Far Eastside will make it a High Risk event there.
- High pressure will return with warm, dry, and breezy conditions Monday-Friday.
- N-NE/Offshore winds 10-20 mph with gusts to 35 mph from the Wrn Cascade-Sierra slopes to the coast. Daily min RH 10-20% beginning Monday. Poor RH recovery also beginning Monday. This is a high risk event from the western Sierra slopes to the coast.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

- High pressure will bring sunny and very warm conditions to the area through Saturday. A trough dropping into the Great Basin may generate gusty winds in the high desert Sunday afternoon and strong north winds over many areas Monday. Offshore flow appears likely Tuesday night into Halloween. No precipitation is expected for at least the next 10 days.
- Sunny, warm and dry. Highs in the 70s in the mountains below 5,000 feet to the lower to mid 90s in the valleys of Southern CA today and Saturday. Temperatures dropping 8-12 degrees by Monday.
- Local northeast winds of 10-15 mph over Southern CA this morning and again Saturday morning.
- Minimum humidity of 10-20% over many areas today through the weekend with poor recovery tonight over Southern CA.
- West winds of 20-35 mph in the Sierras and Inyo N.F. Sunday afternoon, switching to the north Monday. Widespread north winds of 15-25 mph with some gusts to 45 mph Monday afternoon the I-5 Corridor, Cajon Pass, the western San Joaquin Valley as well as the Owens Valley.
- Offshore winds likely Tuesday night through Thursday morning. The winds may be strongest in Ventura and northern Los Angeles, peaking in strength Wednesday.
